COMMENTARY

31.03.2010

The beginning of the year was marked by rather mixed economic figures in the USA, notably as regards retail sales, jobs and real estate, while in Europe economic recovery remained very hesitant. Moreover, questions concerning the public finances of certain countries in the euro zone revived fears of default. Against this backdrop, expectations of a rise in key interest rates diminished, allowing bond markets to stay well on track.

With unemployment approaching 10% in the euro zone, growth prospects for household consumption remain bleak, despite the latest more encouraging-looking figures, which reflected various stimulus and support measures for purchasing power. Inflation, while increasing slightly to 1% on an annualised basis, remains well within the ECB target range.

Economic recovery in the industrialised countries is likely to remain moderate and non-inflationary, with key interest rates stable and a reasonably upward sloping rate curve. In this context, bond yields should move within a trading range.
